A Letter From Our CEO

Dear Student or Parent:

Seven years ago, I graduated from Aquinas High School in San Bernardino as the valedictorian of the Class of 2003. In those seven years, it has been my great pleasure to work with a number of students as they have prepared for the SAT and embarked on their own journey into the exciting (and sometimes overwhelming) world of higher education. I am proud to say that students who have studied my SAT prep method are now enrolled at (and graduating from) universities such as: UCLA, Berkeley, Stanford, UCI, LMU, Notre Dame, Georgetown, Cal State Long Beach, St. John's, and Claremont-McKenna. While I always took pride in my own achievement in scoring in the 99th percentile on the SAT, the experience of transferring the knowledge and skills necessary to succeed on this test and beyond has been more rewarding still. Having worked on the Admissions Committee of a top tier university, I understand the college admissions process from the perspective of the student and the admissions office. I have found that a knowledgeable approach to the SAT and all major aspects of applying to college is the best way to help students combat the anxiety and uncertainty that often accompanies this process.

"The diagnostic tests and customized reports made it easy for me to track my progress and focus my efforts to improve on specific areas"

"[My Instructor] really cared about whether you improved or not...[he] asked about how you did and even helped me after the course was over. Not only did I raise my scores, but I also learned a lot of helpful skills for taking tests that I still use to this day in college"

While a student at Georgetown University, I had the opportunity to develop and teach my own approach to the SAT, while working with students of all ability levels. That approach became the framework for the Foundation Educators "Deconstructing the SAT" course, which has been very successful. Our students have improved, on average, 200 points while taking this course.

As always, students who enroll in our "Deconstructing the SAT" course will learn the tips, tricks, and tools necessary for greater success on the SAT. We will offer our standard course instruction, four diagnostic exams with customized feedback, and additional review/make-up sessions. The price of enrollment is $499.00.

Whereas other companies revoke their guarantee if a student misses one class, we will offer our extra sessions to try to accommodate for vacations, illness, and other scheduling conflicts. And we offer to you this guarantee—We will provide the highest quality SAT preparation course at the best value. If your score does not increase by 150 points, or if for any other reason you are not satisfied, we will work personally with you, one-on-one if necessary until you feel prepared for the SAT. If you have any questions about the course, our company, or the college admissions process, please do not hesitate to contact us through our website, foundationeducators.com. We look forward to working with you this summer.

Sincerely,
Stephen Silvius
